

Rice professor installed in National Academy of Sciences

In a formal induction ceremony, Dr. Moshe Y. Vardi signed the membership registry of the National Academy of Sciences, in Washington on April 30. He is the Karen Ostrum George Distinguished Service professor in computational engineering and director of the Ken Kennedy Institute for Information Technology at Rice University. Vardi resides in Bellaire, Texas, with his wife, Pam Geyer.

NATIONAL ACADEMY OF SCIENCES